

Night Soul

This is an essence which was derived from Paph. Wossner Black Wings and includes 24K gold essence in its composition. It is a unique orchid, one in the nature of its colour and also, and also that a single flower arose on its stalk, which is rather unusual in its timing and appearance. It is a very powerful orchid and its photograph which I saw with the black background had an immediate effect on me and made me uneasy about the nature of its power. However on closer connection with the orchid it had to be made between Dawn to Dusk, as it was the time of its greatest potency, and its purpose was to set free the captive soul from its entrapment and move it into enlightened space. I had this image of a giant lonely warrior walking in a war ravaged dark landscape with a red sky in the distance, a solitary figure in a desolate landscape. On a journey it could apparently not complete. The figure had no distinctive markings as it was in the shadow of the red sky.

On further evaluation of this essence the following key features of this essence appeared, The essence is a clarifying essence (far more powerful than Internal Cleansing) whose purpose is to allow removal of hard held beliefs and structure which will if allowed to persist, prevent evolution of the human soul. I see this essence as an enabling essence the lone warrior in a sea of destruction preventing the darkness from overcoming the light. It is a charged essence which has in those who are carrying large amounts of emotional or spiritual baggage, the ability to still the mind and body, as it allows the RELEASE of the charged emotions, and if consumed in excess, to first ENERGISE the body and make one feel invincible and then if appropriate will produce an (homoeopathic) aggravation which could be intense physical symptoms which MAY need homoeopathic intervention, thereby producing a more profound cure. (The Carcinosis of the essence world)

That night I had a two sequential dreams unusual in the first I was being bombed in a battle field by spherical rough surface spheres which if I managed to catch and return burst into pure white light. The spheres appeared to be like faecal masses and these were continuing to rain down onto a crowded area and it was imperative that they be thrown back or away before they burst. But as they burst the light was pure white with no afterglow or debris. The light was pure; light like no other light on this earth. (starlight)

The immediate second dream was of the sky being filled with black birds (ravens) which were raining down Guava's, or passion fruits/pomegranates (fruits with seeds in the pulp) which were everywhere. The symbology of the raven is a harbinger of destruction or the bringer of wisdom, the raven also represents solitude which is in keeping with the immediate symbology and vision of the lone warrior, and the fruits with seeds are about new growth. Rather contradictory images. Yet it was necessary for there to be the fruits of war!! The fruiting seed especially the pomegranate is a symbol of immortality; multiplicity in unity; perennial fertility; fecundity. (One of the three blessed fruits along with citrus and peach)

On receiving the essence, there was an immediate sensation on holding the bottle which made me exceptionally tired so I HAD to sit down, as it appeared to wipe out all the tension I was carrying inside. I took 5 drops of the essence and repeated the essence 2 hrs later, there was sense of inner certainty, (I know not what) but had to get around doing things I had put off. That night and for the next five night my dreams were more vivid and apparently real (Similar to redemption Dreams though different) in one of the dreams there appeared a black haired woman with flowing tresses, Caucasian, who was dressed as a warrior (Wonder woman?) And she had a diadem with a pendant Ruby over her third eye, and was holding court!

I have taken the essence for a few days and the effects are subtle but profound you know that there are deep changes being influenced by the essence. There is some activity in the thoracic area, not specific to the heart chakra. There is a sense that it is alright to be alone! I have a sense that this essence has a triangular receptor pattern relate to the eyebrows and also to a point below the naval, not related to the chakras per se.

One of my provers had the following experience: At first nothing seemed to happen, and then I got the sensation of an intense purple / deep blue in the area of my third eye which moved to the crown. There was then a 'sinking' feeling of deep relaxation particularly of the area around the heart. There was a slowing of the heart beat. My whole body felt really heavy as though I was melting but 'I' was separate from this as though I was an observer. There was deep peacefulness and then inside my ears started to tingle as though I was receiving messages but I couldn't quite hear what they were. It was like I was receiving a transmission but didn't need ears to hear it.

Another of the provers felt she had an intense charge in her arms and legs and energy that made her believe that she could move mountains, she felt strong emotionally, like a lone warrior. This essence seems to activate the warrior archetype if present in one.

Don had a similar experience after having consumed a large quantity of the essence and he first was energised and had sensations centred on the brow and the heart and then 72 hrs later had a massive physical effect which needed homoeopathic support.

One prover who gets extraordinary information primarily through her dream state saw herself and another taking the old spray labels which were no longer needed, outside to a burn pile. As the labels were burning, suddenly the Night Soul orchid appeared above the flames. The symbolism of this dream was that this essence will help to destroy the old unnecessary bits of the soul's journey and enable the new to replace the old.

Another of trusted provers had this to say: Ok, started my day with 5 drops of Night Soul - wowwwwww! My eyes feel so focussed, there's a real direction and joyful energy going on with this. My immediate thought and feeling was that I wanted to hug everyone... the entire world, not for any personal gain, I felt as though my love was flowing. Half an hour later I took my usual 3 drops of Love Beyond Love which gave curves to force of Night Soul. I feel very good - faint mind image of gracefully stepping out of an old body into a new one.

I feel that in taking these 2 essences a real sense of inner union and stability is coming together. I'm feeling confident today without being cocky - long may it last. I also feel that this is providing support and strength to move in my chosen direction. This prover has had a lot of stuff and these shifts experienced are startling in the direction she is being able to look at in her changes to her life!

Another sensitive who is based in Japan had these observations to report:

I first saw HUGE&HEAVY square brown old stone. It has been there for ages, maybe from ancient times. It was very big and heavy and no one tried to move it. It was not dirty at all – just OLD. I saw a wolf face nearby. It was not scary face at all. (The wolf is the earth; fierceness; devouring; the dual nature of mercury; Romulus and Remus ;) Anyway, the first image I saw was dark in general. I found that my neck and upper back became very warm and felt so nice. Also the essence goes very slowly and deep inside of our energy. Next, I saw a man living in the cave walking towards to the entrance – from dark to the light in the tunnel, sort of. I was watching him from his back. It was early in the morning, a bit of mist or fog outside. His cave was in a very high place, just like a part of a huge canyon – such as Yellowstone canyon in the US. I fell into a very deep sleep then. I saw that HUGE old stone was lifted up, and there was a warm wooden home under that. I did not see any people, but I saw many woods and warm energy down there. And the wolf was looking at the sun and went away. After a while, I saw a woman in a beautiful pure white wedding dress. Then next, I was a child with another child friend in a swimming pool. It was not a clean pool and the water was brown in colour. She and I tried to compete to go to the other side of the pool. But there was a heavy stone obstruction ahead. It was shaped like a table with a central pedestal. So, there was a space for small children to go through, but I could not go through, and I thought myself that if I was smaller I could go through. She went through anyway. Then I felt something very hot and sharp thing. It was a gold bracelet Overall, I found that this essence is going to move the old sitting (stagnant) energy in us and make a big change.

This essence is an essence of deep change, not specifically related to the chakras of the somatic level (1 – 7) but more to the higher chakras 8th -15th It will have more to do with activating and enhancing the qualities of the new generation of orchid essences and more will be known of this essence as we study it further. This essence should be thought of and used in clinical and energetic situations where the clarity of the energetic picture is lost and needed clarification prior to reevaluating suitable essences for continued treatment! It is from evidence so far to be used on its OWN prior to introducing other essences. My feeling though currently limited is that it will almost certainly benefit from essences like Love Beyond Love, or Loves Secret.

Adrian

12-4-2011