

Purity of Soul

This is essence Purity of Soul is created from Dendrobium Moniliforme is the spiritual sister of the Hive of Heaven. It is a beautiful essence like gentle rain on the soul from the heavenly mother. This really is a high level of love and purity.

A level of Love and purity just like as holy water cleanses all our dirt and negativity, and ego. "Mother Maria's tear drops". This essence cleanses the unnecessary clutter and baggage from our soul clearing past events and creating a restful serene state from which we progress on our Journey. There is a sense of fullness in the heart chakra a need to RELEASE, pent up feelings and emotions

The key feature of the essence is the need for ABLUTION, a washing of the soul, prior to donning the garments of purity. I dreamt of a Eurasian/Japanese Woman with black shoulder length hair, in waves. She was dressed in white jeans and a sky blue silk top and she was kneeling, her right hand was across her chest the palm of her hand was across the trapped receptor and the fingers tips over the repeater, she was serene calm and beautiful and was in a prayerful mode.

The next night I continued to dream after having written my notes on the essence, and in this I was in front of a beautiful woman with long black hair and a centre parting wearing a "very short" black skirt and a white blouse, I hear myself asking her does the skirt need to be that short, a rather confusing image of attraction knowledge and the definition of purity! I do not recollect her reply, Don who used this essence felt that he was drawn to his knees and had to bow in an act of humility. The nature of this essence is a preparatory essence for the full potential of the Hive of Heaven. To use this essence, our energy level goes up for spiritual ascension. It gives us the awareness and the lightness as an angel's wing. Don was equally emphatic about the word ABLUTION (One that he does not use) which came through from taking the essence. It also has a joy of the purity of being. But it is different to the effect of Joyous Purification. It is much higher than that.

One of my trusted provers, Had this to say about the essence: It immediately expanded her energy fields into the Aura and she felt more aware there was immense tingling throughout the body, and especially into the toes, She felt energy at the back of her shoulders, and the most peculiar feeling that her "head had stopped" This is frequent finding in those who are practicing high level meditations, it's called attunement This is the stage of detachment in which the noise of the mind is stilled to allow inner peace to prevail and continued to experience this feeling for some hours after taking the essence. Her conscious sense was that she was in contact with her energy body; there was no specific chakra level activity unlike with Don who experienced his third eye opening, and the effects on his heart centre. There is a certain quality of alertness felt at skin level all over the body and yet the head space is utterly quiet. It's as if the body is alert but the mind calm and empty like a blank slate. I felt like a mute as I had absolutely no desire to talk. I actually felt a bit lost at first as I'm not used to such a quiet head. Mostly I feel this essence at skin level with energy moving from there out into the auric field. First I can feel every single toe. And it feels like the energy extends forwards from each toe. I also feel these energy extensions laterally from the sides of my arms just below the shoulders and also forwards from the front of my armpits. The tip of my nose is also tingling and I get a visual of a mouse. I feel the essence a small bit in the solar Plexus area. My lower back suddenly relaxes downwards. I feel like my whole pelvic area has dropped downwards and relaxed. (This ties in with my observation of the girl with the micro mini, in that is it necessary to be that exposed in the pelvic centre?)

Another of my trusted provers had these observations on the essence:

"Ooh this is going to be a really useful one for many situations. (I feel that...) It addresses states of discord, disharmony, polarity, opposition, negativity, conflict whether this be spiritually, physically, emotionally and laterally manifesting in the physical world if it were not addressed internally (maybe).

It works by shedding light on the oppositions, clarifying them, knowing why they exist, knowing that they both serve a purpose (it is human nature in fact throughout nature polarity/opposition exists - this is necessary) It shows you that it's ok for these opposites to exist and shows a way for them to co-exist...thus gather energetic strength from both and cooking it up into a far more powerful expression of harmony flexibility, communication, creativity. I think it helps to hold the heart steady within a maelstrom of emotional pulling, remaining centred and confident.

The fight/flight mechanisms are basic human instincts but these can get completely out of hand (I'm living proof) I think Purity of Heart will allow you to know what is appropriate.

I also think this may be an interesting one for us lucky sods who are on the Bipolar spectrum, suspect it may balance out of whack Qi/Chi....which leads me to wonder whether this may be a good friend for acupuncture practitioners...not sure not my area of expertise (assuming I have one!)

May also help with indecision. May help you be prepared for change by lowering the blood pressure and being prepared to make changes.

In summary I think cleanses, washes away disturbance in our personal atmosphere and allows a mist of peace to descend. We will see.

This similar exploration/feeling of the essence has been noted by others who took the mother tincture, the sense of grounding and expansion dissociation but atonement to the higher purpose.

Another of the sensitive provers had this to say of her initial exploration: I'm going to take this one regularly as of yesterday as I feel the cleansing, rectifying and repairing aspects are important. e.g. was out an about just over an hour ago when I started to feel overwhelmingly depressed, started crying totally stopped communicating with Dad, got out the car, no goodbyes, just had to get in the house and cry my heart out...took my 2nd dose of Purity of Soul today and...While the underlying feelings of isolation and despair are still hovering around me, the tears have subsided, the paralysis has eased (up to a point) and a bit more perspective has returned.

My experience was rather unique as I took the essence for the first time it tasted unpleasant as if it needed to be expelled, it probably went in very deep because I then had dreams for the next few nights all about trying to remove corruption from ancient Brazilian/Mayan civilisations, I was VERY AWARE of the processes going on in my mind/soul, about the need to release shackles of restraint from EONS to the present life,

Also there is a sense of being cloaked as a bride in a pure white. An angelic wedding on the heavens! Note that this orchid has the flowers in pairs, and would be in keeping with the symbology of pairing. I sense it has a dreamlike and gentle quality, yet it has a firmness of purpose. A call for atonement. An awakening of a lost understanding of spiritual realms which we have forgotten over time.

The orchid required that the essence be made in a room in which the environment was in the blue range of the spectrum in diffuse white light; hence the windows had net curtains, so that the infusions would take place only in the diffuse light. I could feel the nature and power of this orchid quite clearly, and this essential truth of the essence will expand on further evaluation.

Note this orchid was cultivated extensively in Japan hence its Japanese heritage and the symbolic images related to this heritage. It has a lineage that goes back 1200 years, and was in the collection of the emperor of Japan. It was the responsibility of the samurai warriors to nurture and grow these orchids. These orchids have a wide spectrum of colours in the leaves due to hybridization but this orchid appears to be the purest one of the line!

Adrian 20-08-2011