

Switching

Switching is a phenomenon in which the right and left brain functions become 'switched' and stuck, unable to swap back. The right brain function is responsible for creative, intuitive, subjective processes and the left brain is responsible for logical, analytical, objective thinking. Ideally we move between each of these areas as necessary in switching we are unable to do this.

Switching can be found on starting the examination of the patient or during the testing (when it can suddenly arise).

It is tested with the right leg of the patient with index finger and thumb on K27 points as shown left.

Aetiology of the switching phenomenon

There are a lot of possible mechanisms behind the switching phenomenon and so it is necessary to find the underlying cause when it occurs.

The causes of switching mentioned in Chiropractic literature include; mental strain, structural problems (cranio-sacral), nutritional deficiencies (e.g.adrenal substance, choline, RNA) and fields of disturbance.

From my own experience the most common causes are:

External

The patient and/ or examiner are in a place disturbed by an electromagnetic field. This is mostly due to the 'radiation' of mobile phones, wireless networks, GSM masts in the neighbourhood or radar waves (of overflying aircrafts / helicopters or radar towers).

The movement of people nearby can cause (electric) circuits to be opened or closed during the energetic examination and there is traction on the electromagnetic field of the place where the examination takes place.

Internal

- A consequence the wrong energetic treatment: such as the intake of a wrong Homeopathic remedy (e.g. by self medication), acupuncture...

- The switching is inherent to the energetic constitution of the patient.

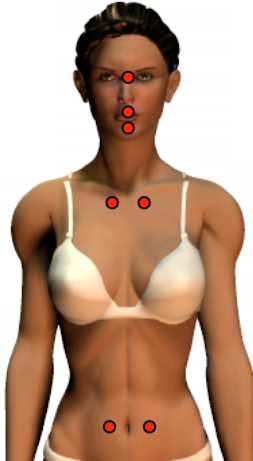

Note: This switching can mostly be detected by excluding possible external causes as well as wrong energetic treatments.

Treatment of the switching phenomenon:

Correcting the switching phenomenon is simple when the source is external e.g. mobile phone, batteries, metallic objects however there is more difficulty when switching is internal or due to implanted prostheses.

There are several methods of correcting internal switching:

1. Using a surrogate (who only has to function as an intermediary e.g. mother who comes to consult for her child)

NB: This technique can also be used to test a person who is energetically out of balance as consequence of a 'wrong' energetic treatment, including homeopathy or acupuncture. In this way it is possible to confirm or to search for the appropriate homeopathic remedy for that person. However, some supplementary energetic and structural corrections will have to be done to bring the energy of that person back into a 'durable' stable healthy condition / energetic equilibrium. This can be done by tapping each of the following areas sequentially:

Glabella tapping
the GV-CV connection
both KI 27 (simultaneously)
both St. 25 (simultaneously).

2. The second method is to administer or bring in contact with the body, one or more (a combination) of the following trace/oligo-elements *:

Ce-La-Sc-Va-Y      C (now: N° 79-AAR/12):
Ce-La-Sc-Va-Y      B
Ce-La-Sc-Va-Y      A
Cu-Au-Ag:
I-Zn

Which one of these combinations has to be administered exactly can be tested by holding successively one (or more) of these bottles on the body or in the hand of the patient while carrying out the switching test again.

3. Another method is:

When we ask the patient to imagine that in his left palm of the hand there is an imaginable little coin (with eyes open), he will test right-handed.

When we ask the patient to imagine that in his right palm of the hand there is an imaginary little coin, he will test left-handed.

Re-occurrence

Once the initial switching phenomenon has been diagnosed and treated correctly, it can re-occur as the energetic examination continues - a new switching phenomenon appears as you move into the next phase of testing. This is also possible when there was not an initial switching.

Consequently, at every step during the energetic examination, the presence of a switching phenomenon must be tested for again, and if present, it has to be read.

Examples of such a switching phenomenon are for example a pineal structural problem, or the indication of a (homeopathic) remedy of which a switching is an inherent part in its constitution as in aethi-a., m-ambo. ..)
